A reflection paper is a type of paper that requires you to write your opinion on a topic, supporting it with your observations and personal examples. As opposed to presenting your reader the opinions of other academics and writers, in this essay you get an opportunity to write your point of view—and the best part is that there is no wrong answer.

In every student's life, writing a research paper is an unavoidable fact, considered as purging to many and rewarding to few. Whatever your experience of writing a research paper may be, it is surely the measure of your intellectual journey in studying to a formal education.

Tone and Structure. Self-reflection is a personal experience. Therefore, the tone and voice of the writing are personal as well. Written typically from a first-person point of view, these types of essays take the reader through a journey of growth and discovery.. The structure and format follow a typical essay writing outline.Begin with a great hook and a strong introduction.

In this example, the author builds her argument by first presenting the topic and then providing background detail. She then ends her introduction with a sentence that explains what the essay will address. While this type of introduction would work for a history paper, it would not work well for a memo because it lacks a central claim
