In 2000 he started teaching Cisco courses for Global Knowledge and taught CCNA, CCNP, VOIP, and BGP classes. After a hiatus from technology, he resumed teaching general networking and Security classes for Global Knowledge. He likes to use humor, creative analogies, and an engaging style to help students

The Transmission Control Protocol (TCP)/Internet Protocol (IP) model is a specific implementation of a communications process. It uses four layers instead of seven. TCP/IP is the model used in network communications today.
