21/10/2021 · If someone has got to the end of a PPL course without (a) knowing enough about weather to be confident of solo flights in benign conditions, and (b) where to look for more information (there a whole book on Air Law and Met, for instance, as a starting point - I'd be very concerned if a new pilot hasn't read and digested most of that), then something has gone wrong.

There are three components to getting your private pilot's license: a written exam, an oral exam, and a practical (flight) exam. These exams will make up about $800-1,000 (8-10%) of the costs of the PPL, plus the cost of ground school (covered below).
