spirituality is an inward expression, while religion is an outward expression of faith. While both Love and Nash attempt to define the terms, I feel there is more to understanding these important differences. First, I will discuss the three concepts of faith, spirituality, and religion. Then, I will

Religion, after all, is a powerful constituent of cultural norms and values, and because it addresses the most profound existential issues of human life (e.g., freedom and inevitability, fear and faith, security and insecurity, right and wrong, sacred and profane), religion is deeply implicated in individual and social conceptions of peace.

This discussion of the essence of human spirituality links the topic to religion. However, there is an important distinction. Whereas spirituality is a consideration of meaning or ultimate purpose, religion refers to the organized, institutionalized set of beliefs, teachings, and practices

Religion differs from spirituality because spirituality is generally perceived as more fluid, eclectic and individualised. Spirituality and religion are not necessarily mutually exclusive because a significant proportion of the population identified as being spiritual but not be religious (Hilbers, 2001).
