In my school when we develop the PLAAFP statements, it's a collaboration of many different people. So if it is an O. T. skill, the O.T. is going to develop the wording, but she will send out an information thing to fill out for the gen ed teacher, for the special ed teacher, on those areas so they can see how it plays out in the classroom versus just their one-on-one setting.

Here's the bottom line: PLAAFP statements provide the foundation for writing IEP goals and objectives. As you move through the next steps of the IEP process, refer often to the PLAAFP statements to ensure that your child's educational needs are directly linked to his or her goals for the next school year.
