Pico Iyer has for many years described with keen perception and exacting wit the shifting textures of faraway lands anchored on a spinning globe that mixes and matches East and West. Now he casts a philosophical eye upon this curious state of floatingness. In the transnational village that our world has become, travel and technology fuel each other and us.

23/6/2013 · Exploring The Global Soul with Pico Iyer. Readers of this blog will know that I almost never write about nonfiction, but in reading My Bookstore, I fell for the writing of Pico Iyer and I wanted to know more about his jet-setting lifestyle. The Global Soul: Jet Lag, Shopping Malls, and the Search for Home did not disappoint.

In The Global Soul: Jet Lag, Shopping Malls, and the Search for Home, Pico Iyer describes jet lag as “that peculiar state of mind—or no-mind—that belongs to the no-time...[a] no-man’s-land, a realm of spaced-out dreaminess where something in one doesn’t engage, and something else comes loose.”¹ For Iyer, jet lag describes the global cultural and technological forces at work today.
