23/2/2020 · Print the final copy of your eulogy using a large text size that's double-spaced so it's easier to read. Staple the pages together in the proper order, or at least number the pages in case they get mixed up. Have a glass or bottle of water handy, as well as a handkerchief or tissues. Remember that it's perfectly normal to show your emotions.

10/5/2019 · For a three-minute speech, choose no more than five main points. Write three to five short items that support each of your main points. Number them.

Using capital letters may help differentiate them from your main points at a glance.

Write as much of your speech word-for-word as you believe you will need, inserting the sentences within the outline.

A good speech is one that ensures the participation of the audience with the speaker. That means the audience will ensure their attention through effective listening, expressing their solidarity with the speech and so on. If your speech fails to hit the checkboxes for these qualities, then it will lose its edge.
