- Gender equality dividend. Investment in women and the education of girls to enter formal, paid work will increase gender equality and women's empowerment as women gain income, education and autonomy. In turn, this is likely to improve family education, nutrition, women's and children's health, and other aspects of development.

Macro forces are the world's broadest currents of change, providing long-term context for changing attitudes, values and behaviours. We have identified six macro forces, evolving from those we defined in 2017. As demography and migration patterns change, we see dynamic
